A teenager once wanted to learn the secrets of happiness. He searched wise. They said it was a person who asked and investigated. He also learned that he lived in a mansion within forty days. He was not cold, he set off and found the sage. Bilge hosted her with a beautiful feast, asked her request: "The secret of happiness," said the young man, "teach me this." Wise agreed to give this secret. He gave a spoon to the young man's hand and put two drops of oil in the spoon. He said, "You will have a nice tour of my mansion, but you will not pour this oil." The boy was walking around the palace, but his eye was always on the spoon. He's back. Wise he asked. "Did you see the Acem carpets in the living room, did you notice the fireplace in the library, did you see the roses in the garden?" asked a lot of details. The embarrassed young man admitted that he had not seen anything. Because he was just looking at oil. Wise said: "So go and see the wonders of my mansion more carefully now. You cannot trust that person without knowing the house he lives in ". The young man, who was relieved, paid attention to everything he saw in his hand and he explained what he saw beautifully. Wise; "So, where are the two drops of oil I entrust to you? He asked. The young man looking at the spoon saw that two drops of oil were spilled. The sage of sages said; "The secret of happiness is to see all the wonders of the world, but without forgetting two drops of oil".

"A Wicked Man and A Kind Bear"

Select a color ▾

A middle-aged man was wandering in the forest and lost his way back to his group. In spite of warnings, he got lost in the forest. When he turned back after a few minutes, he could see nothing but dense trees without showing the way. He was tensed and tried to walk back. He couldn't find the way back. Suddenly he heard a mild roaring voice. He realized that it was a lion and could see traces of the lion. He rushed and ran faster to save his life from the lion. He saw the lion approaching him. He swiftly climbed a huge tree and positioned himself comfortably on a high branch. He wasn't very sure how he climbed the tree. Parallel to the branch that he was seated, he saw a bear sleeping in another branch. Lion saw the tree, the man, and the bear. He asked the bear to push the man down, as he was hungry. The bear humbly replied, 'Dear Lion, I am sorry I cannot do that. This is my tree, my shelter. He came to me to rescue his life. I cannot let him die and never let him fall!' Hearing this, the man felt happy. The Lion remained silent for a while. He then asked the man, 'Hey, push the bear down. I will leave you.' The man without even thinking for a minute, tried to push the bear. However, the bear was so clever that he hanged to another branch and seated comfortably.

Once upon a time, a clever monkey lived on an apple tree. It was friends with a foolish crocodile that lived in the river. The monkey shared the fruits of the tree with the crocodile every day. The crocodile's wife learns about this friendship and asks the crocodile to bring the monkey's heart, which could be sweeter than the fruits of the tree. The couple invite the monkey for dinner and plan to eat his heart. The crocodile offers to take the monkey on its back, so that it can cross the river to reach home. On their way, the foolish crocodile mentions his wife's desire to taste the monkey's heart. The monkey is quick to understand its friend's intentions and tricks it by saying: "Oh, but I forgot my heart at home. Take me back so we can get it." As soon as they reach the river bank, the monkey jumps off the crocodile's back, and vows never to trust it again.
